New State Regulations Would Have Dire Effect on Shore Development, Report Says

By Vince Clark

A state environmental report on plans to increase state regulations concerning offshore wind energy development would have a dire effect on shore development, a report released by Cape May County officials says.

The report, titled "Offshore Wind Energy Development in Cape May County," was released by the Cape May County Planning Board on July 18. The report was prepared by the Cape May County Planning Board and the Cape May County Office of Planning and Economic Development.

The report states that the proposed regulations would have a significant impact on the county's economy and tourism industry. It also notes that the regulations would increase the cost of development and reduce the number of jobs created.

The report also discusses the potential for increased state regulations concerning offshore wind energy development. It notes that the state is considering a number of new regulations that would increase the cost of development and reduce the number of jobs created.

The report concludes that the proposed regulations would have a dire effect on shore development in Cape May County. It recommends that the county take steps to protect its economy and tourism industry from the impact of increased state regulations.

Summer Parking Problems
Wildwood Mayor Raises Idea of Garages

By Christopher Smith

As a solution, he said, would be a parking garage in the Wildwood Ocean City area, which he said would be more practical. The mayor said he would like to see a parking garage built in the area, which would be a more practical solution than the current parking situation.
